Cor. Eighth & Race Streets, PHILADELPHIA, PA,

Could Crispin see ye loving glee Of both in wedleck tiod:— Far from being sad he would be glad That he so soon had died. Crispin in Heaven,—to him is given To see those souls of earth, Who paid each bill, like such folks will, For honest labour's worth;—

CRISPIN STRAP.

As ever drove a peg; His L-E-G I pen-lor he Had only one sound leg:-

But he had one that buckled on— 'Twas cork, ye best in town!— Yet if in haste he walked too faste Ye false leg let him down.

He was not long for this world's throng,— His height was five feet four: When near his end both fee and friend Said he would mend for sure.

With pegs he worked, and stitched and jerked To earn ye delily pelf: He beat ye Doctor's deftest skill— For he could heal himself.

Soles did he strike—not Parson-like— Whose work is oft a cheat; He mended soles by halves and wholes And comfort gave ye feet.

His hammer's lift and fall were swift; His waxen ends went fast; He pegged away—both night and day Till he pegged out at last.

When 'neath ye sod a greedy squad Of creditors swarmed round—

Ye auctioneer;—from ear to ear All mouth, sold out ye same. And for blusself, took half ye pelf!— Ye neighbours cried "for shame!"

Yo widow's share quite made her stare, And left her in a fix: When debts were paid, ye sum left made-in shillings—ten and six.

Ye widow vexed, and sore perplexed, Was left in woefull plight:— Starvation day not far away And solitude at night!

Ye soothing thoughts from hymn of Watt' Hope gave her,—where it says "Behind a frowning Providence He hides a smilling face."

Ye lines came true—as such like do And made her thankfull be— To Ilim whose hand holds ye dry land, And calms the raging sca.—

Kind Providence—her husband henc lurst through ye clouds next day; A cobbling friend laid down his end And wedded her straightway.

To Crispin go, or stay below?
She seemed to know not which:
Mourning were joy without alloy
Had he but left her rich.

Of creditors swarmed round...
eised stock and kit...nor recked a bit
Whose feelings it would wound,

But sees he not ye frauds who got lils work, yet never paid For mended gear from year to year;— Such half-soled souls were made—

To go below where endless woe
Forevermore brildes
Such arrant cheats and vile dead-beats,
While he in bliss abides.

When Gabriel's trump makes cobblers jum And scratch their frighted polls— Ends well worked here will hold good there And mend such cobbler's souls,

'Tis well that he—who used boot-tree, Pegs, wax, thread, bristles, paste And smoothing-rasp—in Death's grim gra Was faithfull to the lest.

Let cobblers all, both great and small "Whose lot on earth is east, Like Crispin do—to boot or shoe— And meet him There at last,

Nearly $20,000 was expended in putting the dan in thorough repair, in addition to money spent in other improvements. Then arrangements were made for the crection of a hotel and cottages. Every member who desired to put up a cottage within six months was allowed a plot of ground 100 feet square.

There are now about sixty members of the club, of whom sixteen have cottages. Commencing from the lower end of the lake, and going to the head, the cottages stand in this order:

being represented, and many of them having very fine and costly edifices.

For many years the town was the connecting point between railroad and canal transportation. As far tack as 12 1831 the Fortage Railroad ascended the eastern alope of the Allegheny Mountains by five inclined planes, up which cars were drawn by stationary engines, and descending the western slope in the same way, connected at Johnstown with the "main line" of Pennsylvania improvements. This great achievement, as it was then considered, was superseded later by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which enters the county of Cambria through the Gallitzin tunnel and leaves it at the border of Westmoreland and Indiana counties. Johnstown is also the terminus of the Somerset and Cambria branch'of the Baltimore's Ohio, and Indiana counties. Johnstown. The greatest iron and steel manufacturing company in the United States—the Cambria Iron Company—has its works in Johnstown. In their numerous blast furnaces, their Bessemer steel works, rolling mills and mines they employ thousands of men. The Johnstown works are of vast extent, covering over sixty acres; with a network of railroad tracks nearly forty miles in total length. The annual product of the works runs into the millions, and balf the population of Johnstown is dependent, directly or indirectly, on the industry.

The Gautier Steel Works, located in the upper part of the town, and under the management of the Cambria Company, are among the most extensive and beet known in the country. The Johnson street railway mill, manufacturing steel rails for street railroads, is situated in one of the new suburbs and is one of the important industrial establishments of the valley.
